1. Listen and fill in the gaps.

People think about $\qquad$ differently. Some people like perfectly $\qquad$ and organised rooms, but others have a "creative mess". They know very well where all their things are, and they are happy $\qquad$ their "mess". But nowadays, there are more and more problems with extremely $\qquad$ rooms. Especially teenagers' rooms!

2. Circle the correct option. Then listen and check.

Sometimes, you are too busy/ lazy or tired/ happy to clean up, and it's OK to have a messy room for a few weeks/days. But a long-term/short-term mess where you are unhappy means you should think about your physical/mental health and perhaps look for a cleaning lady/ help.
3. Ask two of your friends these questions and write down their answers. Which one is more messy?

| Questions | friend 1 | friend 2 |
| :--- | :--- | :--- |
| What do you do when you  come home from school? |  |  |
| What do you do when you  take off your clothes? |  |  |
| What do you do before you  go to bed? |  |  |
| How often do you clean the  floor in your room? |  |  |
| How often do you clean the  dust in your room? |  |  |
